MAY CONTEST ORLAND ELECTION

Election Board Throws Out Dark Horse Votes

The Orland village election was the biggest mixed up mess that has been seen here in years and it is probable that the election may have to be held over again.

A number of dark horses were groomed and trotted out in the political arena at the eleventh hour and placed on what should have been an independent ticket.

Up until 4 o'clock 20 votes had been cast and from 4 to 5 o'clock 35 votes were cast. When the ballots were counted it was found the regular ticket had 20 straight votes while all the names of the opposing candidates had been written, but the ticket had no heading to show whether it was an independent ticket or what not. The names of the candidates were badly mixed. The names of Dr. Schuessler, Sr., W. R. Schuessler, Jr., were written for police magistrate when both names were meant for the same man as there is only one Dr. Schuessler in Orland. W. R. Schuessler and W. R. Schuessler were written in for village trustees as also were the names of I. A. Cleveland, and Geo. Yunker. For village clerk the names of Al. Kline and John A. Kline had been written in. The candidates whose names had been written in received more votes than those on the regular ticket.

The judges of election refused to accept the votes cast for the "Independent ticket and a big furore was created which nearly wound up in blows. It is rumored that the opposing faction has taken the matter to court in Chicago. Thus far no one has been officially declared elected. Failure to properly instruct the voters is said to have caused the confusion.

LAZY BOB PARKINS IS COMING TO TINLEY PARK

What do you think Lazy Bob Parkins is coming to Tinley Park. Who is he? Well he appears in a 8 act comedy which the Young People of Bachleors Grove Lutheran church are going to give in their third annual entertainment at the Saenger hall, Tinley Park on Tuesday evening, May 6th. A musical program will be given in connection with the play further particulars later.

WM. TEMPS SAYS THAT NEWS-BULLETIN ADLETS ARE SURE PULLERS

Wm. Temps of Mokena had some hay for sale and he placed an adv. in the News-Bulletin classified column and says that he sold the hay quickly, buyers coming from the other side of Worth.

Ervin Marti, of the Marti Poultry Farm of Mokena, had some hatching eggs for sale and he had an adv. in the News-Bulletin classified adv. column and reports a fine batch of orders for the eggs, selling them as fast as the supply came.

Fred Yunker at Orland had a horse for sale and ran an adv. in the News-Bulletin classified adv. column and sold the horse a few days after the adv. appeared.

We could go enumerating like instances to fill a column, but the instances cited show that the News-Bulletin is thoroughly read and is a pulling power when it comes to advertising. Not only is this true of our classified column but the display ads also have a big pulling power as has been found by the Joliet stores who advertise in the News-Bulletin. This paper brings the buyer and seller together.

Profit by the other advertisers experience and patronize the News-Bulletin for result getting advertising.

TINLEY PARK BOARD HAS NEW MEMBERS

The regular village election held on Tuesday was a rather tame affair. Had it not been for a few dark horses appearing at the eleventh hour there would not have been any excitement at all. John Breithbarth and Henry Klepper were put in the race for the offices of village trustees against the candidates on the regular ticket.

The result of the election was as follows:

Village trustees, Arthur Schoeneck 77 votes; Wm. F. Koehler 93 votes; Edward Henke 114 votes; John Breithbarth 10 votes; Henry Klepper 5 votes.

Village clerk, H. A. Mager 119 votes. Mr. Mager had no opposition for the clerkship. Chas. F. Nielson who has held this office for a number of terms decided he had enough of politics and did not seek the office again. This election makes quite a decided change in the personnel of the village board.

George Rowden and Christ Mager served as judges of election and Mrs. John Klepper and Mrs. Du Val as clerks.

force and Mr. Nordsen of Chicago has been named his successor. Mr. Nordsen expects to locate in Mokena.

SOME MOKENA STREETS ARE A DISGRACE TO TOWN

Now with the elections over and with the regular routine of village business before them, the village dads of Mokena should consider a matter of special importance to a large number of Mokena residents by way of improving Second street from the Albert Braun corner to the school house and Niethammer Avenue from the corner to the W. H. Bechstein premises and the street from the Erhardt Oswald, Jr., corner up to the Charles Geuther corner. These streets have been shamefully neglected for years while Front street and a few other favorite streets have been getting all the attention. Money levied for street purposes has been spent on these streets while the other streets mentioned have been given no consideration what ever, although the property owners have been paying their share of hard road and street taxes for years.

It is time that the village board stop spending money on a few favorite streets, and spend the money levied for street purposes last year on the streets that are in such dire need of repair. Many automobiles use these streets which are impassable in wet weather and are a disgrace to the village board and the village of Mokena. The News-Bulletin hopes that the village dads will show enough civic pride this year and repair the thoroughfares complained of.

MOKENA HIGH SCHOOL IN DANGER OF BEING ABOLISHED ENTIRELY

A movement is on foot to abolish the high school department of the Mokena public school. There are two factions who are waging a fight on this issue, one side contending that the two year high school course is impractical and a needless expense to the tax payers of this school district and that if the students from this district wished to attend a high school in any of the nearby cities they can do so without any extra expense as the county pays the tuition anyway and at the same time the student gets the full high school course instead of only two years as is taught in the local school now. On the other hand the advocates of the high school course defend it, saying that it gives students who are not able to go to other high schools, an opportunity of getting a high school education.

The school board is divided on the issue and it is probable that the matter will be put up to the voters of this district to decide whether they wish to continue the present high school department or not.

JUMPS FREIGHT AND IS KILLED UNDER WHEELS

A man said to have been A. O. Van Dorn of Pontiac, Ill., was killed in front of the Union station at Joliet Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock while attempting to "flip" a Santa Fe freight train. He missed his hold and rolled under the train and was ground to death beneath the wheels. Mr. Nordsen, a Rock Island signal maintainer, who is working out of Mokena, assisted in securing the identification of the man by patching together torn parts of a letter and cards in the dead man's coat.

NEW LENOX CEMETERY IMPROVEMENT DRIVE ON

The New Lenox Cemetery being in need of funds with which to build new fences, gravel drives, walks, etc. the Association has appealed to the New Lenox Home Improvement club for aid, and as a result a drive has been launched in New Lenox township for donations to this worthy cause and members of the Club will visit every family in New Lenox township or donations. The following committee is in charge of the drive: Addie Walz Francis, Eva Lynk Kercheval and Edith Hill Francis.

Easter Lilies

By Mabel W. Phillips

In the vast aisles of His temple,
Where a hundred soft lights glow,
Pouring through the stained glass windows

Over lilies pure as snow:
He is walking midst the silence,
Listening blossoms bow their heads
To His voice so low and gentle
That a benediction sheds.

In the dim aisles of His temple,
When the lights have ceased to glow,
He still lingers midst the fragrance

Other faintly to and fro;
Hark! the anthem of the angels
Wakes the dawn, for Christ is near;
Vibrant is each tender flower,
For the night is left of fear.

In the hushed aisles of His temple,
As the organ music grows,
He is standing midst the lilies,
See the light that o'er them flows?

Safe they rest upon His bosom
Fadeless through eternity,
Stooping with the lamb held gently
Even thus He stoops to me.

MOKENA TO HAVE BUILDING BOOM

Mokena is going to have a building boom this spring and summer. Elmer Cooper, well known Mokena garage man has begun excavation work for his new modern bungalow to be built on a lot he recently purchased from Mrs. Herbert Moriarty which is located on Second street across the street from the Tonn dwelling. It is understood that Geo. J. Hacker, casner of the Mokena State Bank and local real estate man is considering building several new residences on his lots west of the W. H. Bechstein premises. These new residences are to be for sale or rent it is understood. This will mean much toward the upbuilding of Mokena.

MAN FOUND AT BEECHER NOT HOFFMAN AT ALL

When the body of a man was found in a cornfield near Beecher last Saturday the rumor spread that it might have been the body of Wm. Hoffman, the young Mokena farmer who disappeared mysteriously from home about two months ago, but inquiry at the office of the Will County Coroner showed that the body was that of an old man and was later identified by relatives. So far no trace whatever has been discovered of Mr. Hoffman.

Mrs. Wm. Hoffman Opens Dressmaking Establishment

Mrs. Wm. Hoffman has moved in one of the flats over the Mokena Hardware Company's store and has opened a dress making room. She also does all kinds of plain and fancy sewing.

It is hoped that Mrs. Hoffman will be given a liberal patronage by the community.

Since the sudden disappearance of Mr. Hoffman over two months ago, Mrs. Hoffman has been obliged to rely on herself for the support of herself and little son Walter.

AUG. HENTSCH AND E. L. COOPER IN RACE FOR SCHOOL DIRECTORSHIP

A special election will be held at Mokena on Saturday afternoon, April 27 to elect a school director to fill vacancy on the school board caused by the death of James Cooper.

August Hentsch has announced himself a candidate for this office as also has Elmer L. Cooper, well known local garage man and a real hot campaign is being waged by both of these candidates. Mokena is really going to have one live and spirited election this spring after all. Both candidates are busy lining up their forces.

TINLEY PARK BUSINESS PLACES WILL BE OPEN WED. AND SAT. NIGHTS

All of the Tinley Park stores and other business places will be open every Wednesday and Saturday evening during the summer beginning with next Wednesday, it was announced this week.

NEW LENOX ELECTS FRED GOULD SCHOOL DIRECTOR

The New Lenox school election held last Saturday afternoon was a real hot affair. For sometime agitation has been on foot for a new school but many of the tax payers felt that the present school was plenty good enough, so the issue became part of the election on Saturday when the advocates for a new school put up George Johnston as their candidate for school director and the opponents of this issue selected Fred Gould as their choice for the office. After a lively election the results shown that Mr. Gould had won out by a big majority and it is said the new school is now dead.

Mr. Gould succeeds Wm. Sayers.

ONLY 33 VOTES CAST IN MOKENA ELECTION

The annual village election held on Tuesday was a very tame affair, only 33 votes being cast. The regular ticket was re-elected. Only one dark horse was in evidence for village trustee. Some friends ran Wm. C. Schmuhl and he received 15 votes. The officers re-elected are as follows:

Village clerk, Karl E. Krapp
Village trustees, Albert Braun, Ona E. McGovney, Edward Schenkel
Police Magistrate, J. F. Schultz

The town board of Frankfort township met with Karl Krapp, the town clerk Tuesday night and the recently elected town officers took over their offices. The new officers are: Highway Commissioner, Emil D. Cappel, succeeding Christ H. Warning, Henry Geuther, town clerk, succeeding Karl E. Krapp and Emil P. Krapp, school trustee.

DARK HORSE A WINNER IN FRANKFORT ELECTION

The Frankfort village election held on Tuesday had a few surprises in store. At first there seemed to be no opposition but at the last minute Chas. Pfaff was run in as a dark horse in opposition to Henry Luhring for the office of village trustee and was elected, defeating Mr. Luhring by 33 votes. The following officers were elected:

Village clerk, Walter Pfaff.
Village trustees, Chas. Scheer, Henry Breidert and Charles Pfaff.
The votes received by the various candidates was as follows: for village clerk, Walter Pfaff 108 votes; for village trustees, Chas. Scheer 108 votes; Henry Breidert 104 votes; Chas. Pfaff 77 votes; Henry Luhring 39 votes.

TINLEY PARK IN HOT SCHOOL ELECTION SAT

Hot elections are getting to be a regular fad in Tinley Park of recent date. Last Saturday night a very spirited school election was held. Dr. C. Scheer whose term as school director had expired did not seek re-election. Wm. Wannemacher was named a candidate although he did not seek the office. Charles F. Nielsen was also named a candidate for this office. Excitement ran high and after the smoke of battle had cleared away it was found that 231 ballots had been cast for Mr. Nielsen and 4 for Mr. Wannemacher. This election had more voters out and more votes were cast than in the regular village election held on Tuesday. Just what action the new school board will take as regards the new school building has not been announced.

A REAL COMMUNITY CHURCH IN ACTION

That a church in order to be of a worth to a community must not only provide the spiritual food, but must also bring the community together thru the promotion of the community idea and providing for the entertainment of the young folks, has been forcefully demonstrated by the New Lenox M. E. church of which Rev. Mr. Hamilton is the pastor.

In order to keep the young folks interested in the home town and to provide good, clean entertainment for the older folks as well, Rev. Mr. Hamilton put on a series of motion pictures at the church and the idea has proved so wonderfully popular that these weekly movies draw a "full" house and have become a part of the social life of the community and it has been clearly demonstrated that it is necessary that only religious pictures be shown because the movies are backed by the church, but good, wholesome, interesting and instructive pictures including some of the most popular productions of the day. The people of the community eagerly look forward to these weekly movie programs.

The latest and most successful move toward bringing the community together as a whole is the outgrowth of the Sunday Evening Club which has a local membership of 250 members. The principal idea is to promote and foster the community idea. A very interesting and instructive program is presented each Sunday evening and usually a well known speaker is engaged to headline the program.

Last Sunday, Mr. Hartley, well known "sky pilot" of the lumber camps of the state of Washington gave a splendid account of his wonderful work. A week from this Sunday the Joliet High School orchestra has been secured to provide a special musical program and John T. Clyne, well known Joliet man, is to give an address.

A church, in order to truly serve the community, must do more than merely keep its doors open a few hours on Sunday and then remain locked for the rest of the week to be opened only in case of a funeral.

A church must look after the interest of the community and even more so after the young people for if it does not do this then other interests will, and often times they are very evil ones too. The New Lenox church is on the right track and it is to be hoped that the pastors and churches of the surrounding towns will make their churches real community centers.

FRANKFORT BASE BALL CLUB DISBANDS

Frankfort is not going to have a base ball team this year. Last week the News-Bulletin had an item about the ball club renting a new diamond and re-organizing and on Friday night at a meeting of the club the members agreed to disband. Unless a new club is organized Frankfort will have to do without the national sport.

TINLEY PARK PUPILS WIN PRIZE FOR SELLING SEALS

The school children are now wearing Red Cross bangles from the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute for selling stamps at Christmas time. Every child who sold $1.00 worth of stamps is entitled to a bangle. In addition the Tinley Park School received two sets of Health Crusade pictures and a book entitled "Health Training in Schools" which is full of delightful stories, games, poems, etc., on health subjects. The school is also expecting two sets of nine each of Chicago Tuberculosis Institute post cards.

The pupils sold $58 worth of seals and are happy to have been able to help out such a worthy cause. They are grateful to the Chicago T. B. Institute for the prizes sent them.

Odd Superstition

An old superstition in Iceland is that every bride must invite all her friends to a dinner in her own home, and every article of food must be prepared by the bride herself. If she is successful in pleasing her guests she not only receives praise for her own skill, but helps along her younger sisters, who are then assumed to be equally good at cooking, and consequently have a much better chance of getting married.

No one with brilliant ideas is ever a good listener.

Something to Think About

By F. A. WALKER

SPRINGTIME

THE richness and profusion of the verdure of the great outdoors, the waving fields of colorful wild flowers, the streams that have shaken off their frosty fetters, the lacy white clouds and the soft blue sky call to you to indulge in springtime saunterings.

The most ancient wisdom sings of life-giving air and golden sunshine, the healing balms for a thousand ills of harried minds, ragged nerves and poisoned bodies.

Who shall say that those men and women who take frequent saunterings in the open, are not better citizens and better equipped to solve life's perplexing problems than those who do not?

Who shall dispute that they are not happier, clearer thinkers, greater originators than those languid souls who find little journeys afoot too dull and wearisome for their pleasure?

What are more beguiling to lovers of nature than the winding wayside paths and the silent aisles in the solitary woods?

The better artists, better editors, better merchants, better men and women in all classes of existence are those who go often to the glorious temple whose dome is the superbly illuminated and ever-changing sky.

Comfort, knowledge, opportunity, resources and health are multiplied a thousand fold in this broad, free air—free alike to the barefooted boy wading the brooks and the golfer in quest of a little white sphere.

Do we find more civic virtue, more lofty thought, more joyous inspiration, more truth and mercy in the sunlight or in the dark?

The outdoor people you will find are more truthful, more upright, more humane and more charitable than the folk who habitually dwell in morose twilight.

They get nearer to heaven, a firmer hold on faith. They have a keener sense of duty and loyalty to one another, and are more benevolent and sympathetic. The elixir of youth is theirs without price.

They laugh often. They whistle and sing to the music of birds, the merry waters and the dancing leaves.

Trees and shrubs and flowers! Who would not saunter among them?

Who would not roam the woods, climb the hills, tread the moss-bordered pools and streams for one draught of the priceless nectar that assures vigorous health and dreamless sleep?

MEN YOU MAY MARRY

By E. R. PEYSER

Has a man like this proposed to you?

Symptoms: An unmistakable gentleman; you know it the moment you set eyes on him. He took you to dinner and actually ordered from the word side of the column. He did it with pride like an artist—he enjoyed it more than you wished; for you'd rather have him talk of you than of "strawberries out of season." He loves restaurants—all the head waiters love and flock to him as he enters the room. You are proud of him. Every place he goes he invents new ways to tip.

IN FACT

He is generosity and public spiritedness personified.

Reflections of a Bachelor Girl

By HELEN ROWLAND

A MAN values anything, from a kiss to a heart, according to the trouble he had in getting it; a woman according to the trouble she has in keeping some other woman from getting it away from her.

Judging from the prompt way in which they begin "checking up" on one another right after the honeymoon, marriage is the miracle that turns a soul-mate into a checkmate.

Eve was the first woman to be blamed for whatever went wrong in the garden; but, as the wife of every suburban amateur Burbank can testify, Heaven knows she wasn't the last!

Man's life is a series of shocks—Yet, let not young lovers despair, Till the mermaids start rolling their necks, And the Lorelei bobs her hair!

Alas, what can a poor wife do? If she lets a man cling to all his little bad habits, he is apt to lose his chances in the future life, and if she makes him give them up, he is sure to lose all his interest in THIS one!

A woman's heart is a "one man" affair; but no man was ever so completely absorbed in one woman as to deaden his subconscious interest in the possible "next woman."

Marriage is the only condition that affords a woman the pleasure of company and the delightful sensation of solitude, at the same time.

Dancing pumps leave very few footprints on the sands of time.

A BIT OF BOTH

By DOUGLAS MALLOCH

"YOU'LL rise and fall," my mother said.
"Have happiness and woes;
No man has known just luck alone,
Whatever folks suppose.
You'll smile and sigh, and laugh and cry,

Whatever height you reach,
Have loss and gain, have joy and pain.
A little bit of each.

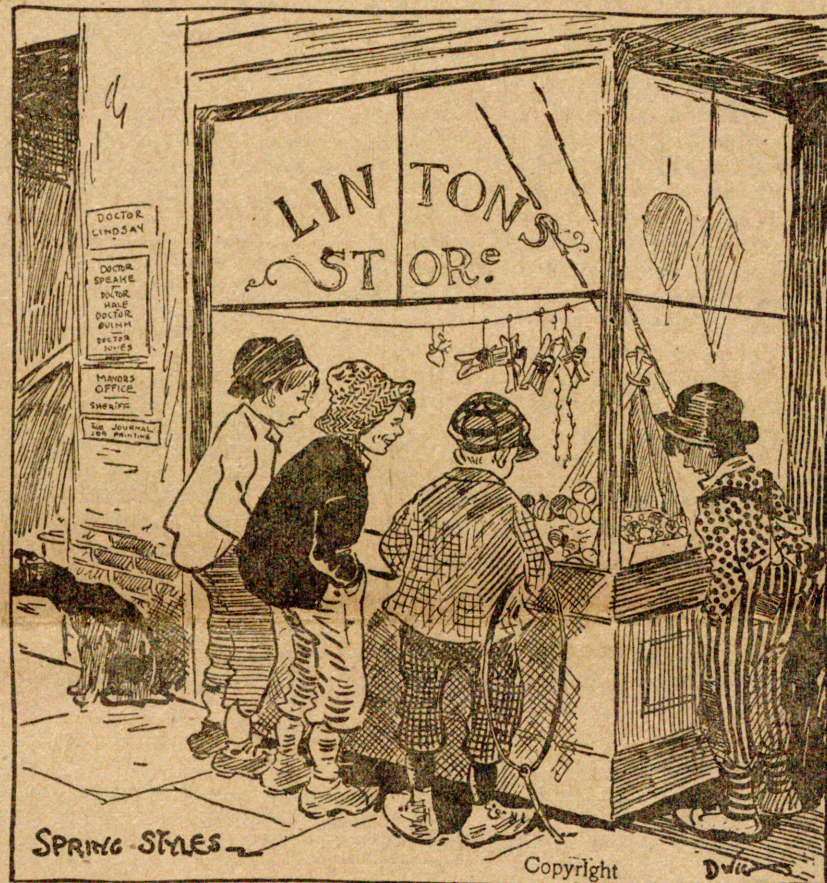

"You'll fall and rise," my mother said;

"That makes it worth the while.
For ev'ry loss and ev'ry cross
I know you'll know a smile.
Don't think to find the world so kind
When you have got your growth;
You'll find the earth is sadness, mirth,
A little bit of both.

"But, rise or fall," my mother said,
"You'll never fall so far
If you are wise and realize
Like all the rest you are.
You'll take the joy and pain, my boy,
And both will serve to teach
That life all through will bring the two,
A little bit of each.

"Then, fall or rise," my mother said,
"You'll never grow so proud
But you'll recall that, after all,
You're part of all the crowd.
If work and play make up the day
You'll labor, never loth,
A little glad you always had
A little bit of both."

FOOD FOR THE WHOLE FAMILY

A NICE, well-baked apple is good for the wee ones as well as for grandmother. They make a nice breakfast fruit as well as dessert. Wash and core without peeling and vary the manner of flavoring. A bit of butter, a dash of lemon juice, or grated rind, a few raisins put into the cavity, a marshmallow or two, or when serving a cube of jelly with whipped cream adds a bit of color and richness. Almonds blanched and stuck into the apple before baking is another suggestion. One will find many new and original ways of serving the common things if thought is put into it.

Prune Pudding.

Take one cupful of uncooked prunes stoned and ground, one-half cupful of sugar, and when well mixed add two well-beaten eggs, three cupfuls of milk, one-half teaspoonful of orange extract and one thick slice of bread well buttered. Cut the bread into small dice and stir into the custard. Bake slowly until the custard is set and the bread is brown. About an hour and a quarter in a slow oven is required.

Tapioca With Pineapple.

Soak one cupful of pearl tapioca over night in plenty of water, drain, add one-half cupful of cold water, the juice from a can of pineapple and the juice of a lemon. Cook in a double boiler until clear, add one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, then the pineapple chopped fine; lastly fold in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs. Chill and serve with cream or a custard, using the yolks of the eggs.

Ginger Cream.

Soak three-fourths of a tablespoonful of gelatin in one tablespoonful of cold water. Make a custard, using one egg, one tablespoonful of sugar, six tablespoonfuls of milk, a pinch of salt, beating all with an egg beater. Cook over water until the spoon is coated, add one tablespoonful of minced Canton ginger and two tablespoonfuls of the sirup; add the gelatin to the hot custard and when thick and cool add one-half cupful of whipped cream. Pour into molds and chill.

Church Designs Studied

Modern religious thought and new economic conditions are bringing about a demand for a change in church conditions and as a result several of the leading denominations have named a special committee to study designs best suited for small or medium-sized congregations. The object is to find the economic value, if possible, in a more liberalized church architecture.

WHY BANKS?

REVIEW

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman,
Committee on Public Education, American Bankers Association.

Those who have been reading these lessons have found banks to be semi-public corporations, chartered, regulated, and examined by State or Nation, but owned by private stockholders.

J. H. Puelicher

We found that banks
1. Receive deposits.
2. Make loans.
We found deposits to be of two kinds—
1. Savings Deposits.
2. Commercial Deposits.

We found that interest is paid on Savings Deposits; that the people's savings loaned by banks to farmers, merchants, manufacturers, produce wages and profits, which make more savings.

We found that were it not for the savings of the past, there could not be capital with which to build schools, railroads, ships, telephone and telegraph lines, factories, and the many things which are a part of civilization.

We found that the banker pays the savings depositor interest for the use of his savings and that he loans these to business but charges business more interest than he pays the saver, so that he could pay his overhead expenses, absorb occasional losses and pay dividends.

We found that bank stock is sold in order to provide capital for the establishing of the bank; that a stockholder in a bank is compelled to pay, in case the bank should fail and the assets not be enough to pay depositors, an amount up to 100 per cent of his stock; that anyone who is able to buy and willing to assume the risk, may purchase bank stock when it is for sale; and that the banks of America are owned by many men and women scattered throughout the country, who have purchased bank stock.

We found that banks render in these ways essential economic services to their communities.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rust entertained a number of guests in honor of their son Joseph's twenty-first birthday, Thursday evening. The time was pleasantly passed with pinocle and buncos, the following being the prize winners: Charles Burkhardt Jr., Wm. Dohr, Chas.
Dawson, Mrs. Wm. Dohr, Mrs. Geb-hardt Koehler and Louise Koehler.
After the games a bountiful luncheon was served. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Burkhardt and son Philip, Mr. and Mrs.

Chas. Burkhardt Jr., Mr. and Mrs.
Wm. Dohr, Mr. and Mrs. G. Koehler and daughter Louise, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Steinhagen and family, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Koehler and family, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Jacobson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Reish and children, Mrs. Geo. Cox,
Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Kollman and son Martin.

Mrs. Wm. Jacobson entertained

the Ladies of Laurel Camp on Thursday afternoon. They are planing on giving an apron sale Wednesday afternoon April 30. A large assortment of fine home made aprons for the stouts and slenders.
In the evening they will give a bunco party. Everybody invited.

Many of Orland people attended the funeral of Earl Strong in Lock port Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Rust and family spent Sunday at the Chas.
Burkhardt home, also Mrs. Elizabeth Mohr.

Mr. and Mrs. John Schmadeke entertained the following relatives
Sunday in honor of Orville and Hazel's confirmation: Mr. and Mrs.
Chas. Stortz and family, Mr. and Mrs. W. Stortz, Mr. and Mrs. Ed.
Schmadeke, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Ebeling and children and Rev. and Mrs. W. C. Greve and children. In the evening the same guests were entertained at the Philip Ebeling
home in honor of their sons confirmation.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Enders who reside west of town, are the proud parents of a 12½ pound son born Wednesday.

The school election which was held Saturday evening was very close, Archie Kay was the candidate cast, Archie Kak was the candidate elected, there being no opposition.

BANKER-FARMER CO-OPERATION

Many Conferences and Practical
Measures Are Bettering
Farm Situation From Ground Up.

The merits of intermediate and long-time agricultural credit now available, organization and co-operation of producers for balanced production, and orderly marketing are the chief topics of discussion at many banker-farmer conferences being held in various parts of the country with the assistance of the American Bankers Association.

At a Texas Agricultural College
meeting representatives of agricultural and livestock associations
agreed that there is no such thing as over-production, and that every increase in production should raise the standard of living higher. They saw need for the organization of producers
for balanced production and orderly marketing to relieve the stress in agriculture, with credit provided of sufficient time to cover farm and ranch turnover.

Legislation Not Wanted
Further legislative action was not considered appropriate. In fact, there was actual opposition to further government action to assist in economic adjustment, everyone there being in complete accord that conditions were propitious as far as existing institutions were concerned to raise the farmer and stockman to a proper economic place in the business world.
The establishment of the Intermediate Credit Bank was declared to be the last step in the provision of necessary agencies of credit, while sufficient opportunity for co-operation
exists in present organizations.

The Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association was described as a means of co-operation between bankers and farmers and its work explained in bringing bankers
in more intimate touch with the actual problems of the farm to develop increased helpfulness.

Banker-farmer conferences have been arranged by the Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association at the state agricultural colleges in Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Iowa, Illinois, South Dakota, Minnesota, North Dakota, Montana, Kansas, Oklahoma, Colorado, and Wyoming.
The Oregon Bankers Association is engaged in the promotion of conferences in an effort to bring about diversified agriculture.

Practical Aid by Banks
Officials of a large Astoria, Oregon, bank are taking an active part in making farming a real business in their community. A group of dairymen wanted to borrow sufficient money to buy a carload of purebred Guernseys. There were practically no purebred Guernseys in the county.
These dairymen had little money so they took the matter up with this bank. A letter of credit for $16,000 was given to them immediately on a joint note.

It meant the starting of purebred Guernsey herds in the county and most of the dairymen who purchased the animals have sold enough of the offspring to pay for the original investment. One of the dairymen says,
"Had the bank not been liberal in making this loan, the original importation could not have been made and the county would not have at this time the reputation it now has as one of the Guernsey centers of the Northwest."

AGRICULTURE

More than ten millions of our people are actively engaged in agriculture. They comprise 26.3 per cent of all persons over ten years of age engaged in a gainful occupation. Our farms represent more than one-fourth of our total national wealth. The value of our farm products in a single year is 40 per cent of that of our manufactured products—and the latter include many finished items which left the farm as raw material. Thirty-one per cent of all our exports in 1921,
in terms of value, were food products
of the farm.—Walter W. Head, President American Bankers Association.

STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY

On Getting Good Investment Advice.

"It seems to me that your mother is making a grave mistake in giving $3,000 to set young Lang up in business," remarked Aunt Emmy, when Helen finished telling her of the wonderful plan Clarence Lang had for starting in business himself. "He is a likeable chap," Aunt Emmy continued
"and very pleasant at parties and such, but if he really were a good business man he wouldn't need his relatives or friends to set him up in business."

"Why not, Aunt Emmy?" queried
Helen. "It doesn't take so much money, really, and he can get ahead
so much faster. What's the use of being just a clerk if he has real ability?"

"That he has so much ability remains to be demonstrated," said Aunt Emmy. "If he were as competent as he has led you people to believe he is
he would have no trouble getting himself financed by men who know the business he desires to venture into.
There are any number of clever men who are willing to back ability and who will stand behind a man's achievements, financially, and take their share of the profit for doing it. Before your mother goes ahead she should consult her bank about making such a move."

"I don't see why, Aunt. The money is hers."

"Yes, but she did not earn it. She inherited it and I doubt if she has any real sense of its value. Her bankers know her financial situation and they can advise her."

"Well, I'll tell mother, but I don't think she will like it," said Helen.

The next day Helen's mother came to see Aunt Emmy.

"I took your advice, Emmy," she said, "and called on Mr. Allen at the bank and told him about what I wanted to do for Clarence. Mr. Allen made a lot of things clear to me. First of all he showed me that I am not rich enough to take unnecessary chances.
He said practically what you told Helen—that an able man can get business backing in a strictly business way
and he pointed out that my first duty was to my own home, and that I must consider those girls of mine before anyone else. Of course, that Clarence might not succeed never entered my head. But Mr. Allen pointed out that possibility. There are so many angles to a new business that I really didn't know about. Mr. Allen was so nice about it. He asked me to come in again whenever I was puzzled about money affairs."

"Well, don't forget that next time
you want to use any of your capital
if more people would go to their bank
for advice there would be far less money troubles in the world," advised
Aunt Emmy.—ANNE B. AYMES.

FITTING BANKERS FOR THEIR WORK

Financial conditions are rapidly increasing the demand for trained men and women. This demand is met by the American Institute of Banking,
the educational section of the American Bankers Association, organized in 1900. It was originally an association of clerks, but since 1908 its membership has included bank directors,
officers and clerks. From a few hundred the institute's membership has grown steadily to a figure in excess of fifty-two thousand. It is not conducted for profit. It has chapters in more than one hundred and fifty of the country's largest cities. Its class enrollment of nearly thirty thousand is greater than the combined registration of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Cornell, the University of Chicago and the naval and military academies at Annapolis and West Point. It offers instruction in banking practice, economics, commercial law, negotiable
instruments, credits, accounting,
bonds and investments, public speaking, and kindred subjects designed to fit the banker for his work and enable him to fill well his place in his community.—Clarence R. Chaney, President American Institute of Banking.

BUSHY'S SURPRISE

BUSHY SQUIRREL had, all his storehouses full. He was not lazy, even if he was too fond of mischief. After his work was done Bushy began to look about, peeking into the pantries of all his neighbors.

Grandpa Squirrel lived all alone, so of course he had to look out for his stores and take care of his home all himself, and such a neat and tidy place as it was quite provoked Bushy when he peeked in through the shutters and saw everything in apple-pie order.

Bushy's eyes began to twinkle. "I'll have some fun," he said to himself. "I will turn everything in Grandpa's house topsy-turvy and I will hide all his nuts and put stones in place of them."

So the bad fellow went to work. He upset everything in Grandpa's sitting room first, and then he began on the pantry. But of course he could not carry away all the nuts in one day, so he didn't begin with those in plain sight. He dug a hole under the pantry and took the nuts that were stored the deepest.

Day after day he worked, and by and by he had carried off all of Grandpa Squirrel's stores and put stones in place of the nuts.

He watched when Grandpa came home and found his room upset. Bushy was disappointed that Grandpa did not make a fuss about it and call out of the door: "Who has been in my house?" Instead he went to work and put everything in place, whistling all the time just as if he liked it.

"He won't whistle when he finds stones instead of nuts," said Bushy. "I guess he will be a surprised old Grandpa when he discovers that."

But just as Bushy went out of the house who should come along but Mr. Dog and Mr. Man with an axe.

Mr. Dog barked and chased Bushy until he was glad to hide in a tree far from his home, where he had to stay for a long, long time, and when at last he did dare to run home his house was nowhere to be seen, for Mr. Man had cut it down and carried it off. And he must have taken the nuts also, for not a nut did Bushy find, though he looked all around.

He was a very forlorn-looking fellow when Grandpa Squirrel came along a little later and found Bushy sitting on the ground where his home had been.

"What is the matter?" asked Grandpa Squirrel, and when Bushy told him, Grandpa said, "Come along home with me. I have plenty of room in my house and plenty of stores."

Poor Bushy! He felt sorry for the way he had treated Grandpa Squirrel. And he was glad enough to go, for it was cold and he knew that it would be a long, cold night for a little squirrel without a home.

When Grandpa Squirrel opened his door a nice bright fire was burning in the fireplace and everything was in apple-pie order. But it looked very different to Bushy now and he was glad to sit down in a nice big chair in Grandpa's tidy room.

Grandpa hurried about, making a nice nut soup. And as Bushy watched him he began to feel uncomfortable. "What if Grandpa found the nuts were gone and he had only stones in his storeroom," he thought.

It wasn't nearly the fun Bushy had expected it to be when he started out that day, and if Grandpa did not have any nuts he would have to go without his supper as well as Grandpa.

Bushy Squirrel felt and looked very much ashamed, but Grandpa laughed and said, "I know just how you feel, my son. I was young once myself, and I have not forgotten that I thought it was fun to eat old Miss Squirrel's nuts."

Bushy stayed with Grandpa and he would not let Grandpa do any work. He got up early mornings, made the fire and got the breakfast, and did all he could to make up for the pranks he had played on him and to repay him for his kindness in giving him a home.

And no more pranks did he play, for Bushy learned that many times what he thought fun was really plain unkindness.

The Why of Superstitions

By H. IRVING KING

DROPPING KNIVES

THE superstition that the dropping of a tableknife means the coming of a stranger existed before forks were invented; when a man cut his food with a dagger and conveyed it to his mouth with his fingers. In those days a man carved his roast and his enemy with the same utensil. When men held their lives and their property by the sword they became much attached to their weapons; personified them; gave them names. As witness Arthur's Excalibur and Roland's Durendal.

There was, also, a survival of the primitive idea that an article closely associated by personal contact with a man came to partake of that man's personality. It can readily be seen how this idea would survive especially with regard to the sword—or to the lesser sword, the dagger—man's friend for defense and ally for aggression. This belief in sympathetic magic naturally caused the sword or dagger to be conceived of as endowed with certain supernatural powers. So when a sword or dagger dropped from his sheath without apparent cause—unsheathed itself as it were—it was a warning to its master of the coming of a foe—and foe and stranger were synonymous in those days.

Scott alludes to the superstition in "The Lady of the Lake" when Douglas' sword "did self-unsheathed forthshow the coming of a secret foe." When for domestic purposes tableknives were substituted for daggers the omen attached itself to the substitute. When the knife dropped to the floor it still warned of the coming of a stranger; but stranger and foe were no longer synonymous. In many sections the omen has been modified to include the coming of any visitor, stranger or otherwise. The belief sometimes run across that dropping a fork means the coming of a male visitor and a knife a female visitor is a modern variant of the old superstition suggested by the shape of the old-fashioned, two-pronged fork.

ANOTHER'S MONEY

TRUMAN SMITH went over fifteen-year-old Elizabeth's lessons with her each evening. Elizabeth was no student, and Latin was the worst.

"Aes alienum"—what does that mean?" asked Truman.

"Another's money," said Elizabeth, glib as possible.

Her father laughed. "Literally!"

He said. Practically "another's money" is translated "debts."

Several years later Elizabeth remembered this conversation. Her first year out of school was gay beyond her wildest imagination. Her father told her that she was grown up now, and gave her an allowance. Her first month's income and her charge accounts started at the same moment; consequently her second month's income went to pay the first month's bills. After that the bills waited.

Gradually Elizabeth's financial policy developed. Her club dues were so small that they could wait. Her dressmaker's bills were too big to pay all at once—she would have to put them off entirely for a while. She consulted a woman friend. The friend assured her that the shops were too dependent upon such customers as they, to make indebtedness disagreeable!

Then Elizabeth found that having forgotten her purse was very convenient when she and two or three friends were out together and it was a question of paying for tea. A month after Christmas she sold her watch, a present from her father. In a desperate resolve to begin to get square.

Then one day she went home to find the little Englishman who made her shoes for her waiting in the hall. As he stood there with his hat in his hand he told her the story of his wife's illness, for the necessity of her going away to the country if she was to get well, of the doctor's bills that they must meet. Elizabeth's long overdue account would make all this possible to them. "Aes alienum," "another's money," came from the forgotten but never obliterated records in Elizabeth's subconscious mind—"debts" means "another's money."

For the first time she went thoroughly over her accounts; for the first time she planned a budget. She was appalled at the unfairness of her own methods. With intelligence, foresight and a stiff backbone her income would be quite sufficient to meet her needs. Denial she must practice till she got even. And then she swore that in future she would acquire the habit of "Pay as you go. Right spending and right paying."

SENATE ANNULS JAPANESE PACT

Votes 76 to 2 to Kill "Gentlemen's Agreement" in Immigration Bill.

Washington.—By the overwhelming majority of 76 to 2, the senate followed the house in defying what senator after senator characterized as the effort of Japan to control American policies. By this vote the senate rejected the immigration committee amendment, under which the "gentlemen's agreement" with Japan was to have been continued.

Three times Secretary of State Hughes hurried over to consult President Coolidge about the situation, bringing all the arguments he could to bear on the President to veto the bill, on account of the serious breach in the friendly relations with Japan which would follow passage of the bill in its present shape.

Administration officials generally took the position that the President would stand by the secretary of state, but political leaders, on the other hand, said the President scarcely could afford to face an issue with congress, where both houses have spoken by such tremendous majorities, and on an issue which, in the opinion of political observers, would find the country solidly behind congress.

Over in the house the naval committee pushed up its estimates for naval construction to $150,000,000, planning to put the navy up to its full standing under the 5-5-3 ratio of the Washington arms conference. Sentiment for this has developed tremendously since the publication of the Japanese ambassador's letter, authorized beyond question, in the view of leaders of both houses, by the Japanese government.

President Coolidge Asks D. A. R. Members to Vote

Washington.—President Coolidge appealed to the women of the nation to exercise the right of franchise. His appeal was made in a patriotic address that featured the first day's program of the thirty-third continental congress of the American Revolution. Two thousand delegates attended the congress. Ambassador Jusserand of France, Ambassador Howard of Great Britain and Secretary of State Hughes also spoke.

Bonus Given Right of Way Over Tax Bill

Washington.—The soldiers' bonus bill, chief storm center of the legislative program, was given the right of way over the revenue measure by the senate finance committee. It will come up before the senate with a view toward passage by the end of the week. If the bonus bill is cleared from the senate, the tax bill will be up for debate early next week.

Standardized Loaf of Bread is Held Illegal

Washington.—The Nebraska law establishing a standard weight loaf of bread was declared invalid by the Supreme court of the United States. The law was attacked by the Jay Burns Baking company, which held it violated the federal Constitution by illegal confiscation of property and impairment of contract and "an improper exercise of the state police powers."

100,000,000 in Europe Want American Homes

New York.—Over 100,000,000 Europeans, including 500,000 Greeks, want to come to the United States, declared Theodore Valentine, an importer, who has returned from Greece. He said that if the United States lowered its immigration restrictions a large part of the population of the world would rush to this country.

"What's in a Name?"

Dr. MILDRED MARSHALL

FACTS about your name; its history; meaning; whence it was derived; significance; your lucky day and lucky jewel

DAISY

WITH the possible exception of Rose, there is no flower name so popular as Daisy. According to all etymological laws, Daisy has no right to be accepted as a proper name unless it is taken in the sense of commemorating the humble but charming little flower of the field.

However, Daisy is still Daisy, from whichever viewpoint she is taken. The same curious coincidence is true of no other feminine name in the English language, and her whole etymological history makes an interesting circle within a circle. Daisy is either the endearing diminutive for Marguerite, or she is the term for the little white flower with the heart of gold which brightens summer meadows. But, as a certain Marguerite, famed in history, was assigned the little blossom as her special flower, it, in turn, was called a marguerite.

Daisy pleased the Anglo-Saxon ear, since Marguerite is unmistakably French; and Margaret, the proper English form, carries a subtle hint of dignity and reserve. It is easy, therefore, to understand its vogue in this country, which is given to contractions and diminutives. Indeed, Henry James' much discussed novel, "Daisy Miller," very nearly succeeded in making Daisy the generic term for American girls.

The pearl is Daisy's talismanic stone. Its close association with the moon—Dante calls the moon "La gran Margherita"—promises her gentleness, purity and beauty. Monday is her lucky day and 4 her lucky number.

"A PRETTY DRAMA"

SYNOPSIS.—Solomon Binkus, veteran scout and interpreter, and his young companion, Jack Irons, passing through Horse Valley, New York, in September, 1768, to warn settlers of an Indian uprising, rescue from a band of redskins the wife and daughter of Colonel Hare of England. Jack distinguishes himself in the fight and later rescues Margaret Hare from the river. Jack and Margaret fall in love. On reaching Fort Stanwix, Colonel Hare says both are too young to marry. The Hare family sail for England, and the Irons family move to Albany. Unrest grows in the colonies because of the oppressive measures of the English government. Solomon and Jack visit Boston. In November, 1770, Jack goes to Philadelphia and works in Benjamin Franklin's printing plant. Nearly three years later Margaret writes him from London, reminding him that her youth is passing and saying she has appealed to Doctor Franklin. Binkus has received a letter from Washington to be carried across the ocean, and Jack sails with him. Arriving in England, Binkus is arrested, but Jack has the letter and proceeds to London. Jack delivers the papers to Franklin in London. Binkus is released and joins them in the great city. Jack orders fashionable clothes.

CHAPTER VI

The Lovers.

The fashionable tailor was done with Jack's equipment. Franklin had seen and approved the admirably shaped and fitted garments. The young man and his friend Solomon had moved to their new lodgings on Bloomsbury square. The scout had acquired a suit for street wear and was now able to walk abroad without exciting the multitudes. The Doctor was planning what he called "a snug little party." So he announced when Jack and Solomon came, adding:

"But first you are to meet Margaret and her mother here at half after four."

Jack made careful preparation for that event. Fortunately it was a clear, bright day after foggy weather. Solomon had refused to go with Jack for fear of being in the way.

"I want to see her an' her folks, but I reckon ye'll have yer hands full to-day," he remarked. "Ye don't need no scout on that kind o' reconnoiterin'."

Ye go on ahead an' git through with yer smacking an' bym-by I'll straggle in."

Presently at four thirty-five Jack presented himself at the lodgings of his distinguished friend. He has said in a letter, when his dramatic adventures were all behind him, that this was the most thrilling moment he had known.

"The butler had told me that the ladies were there," he wrote. "Upon my word it put me out of breath climbing that little flight of stairs. But it was in fact the end of a long journey. It is curious that my feeling then should remind me, as it does, of moments when I have been close up to the enemy, within his lines, and lying hard against the ground in some thickets while British soldiers were tramping so near I could feel the ground shake. In the room I saw Lady Hare and Doctor Franklin standing side by side. What a smile he wore as he looked at me! I have never known a human being who had such a cheering light in his countenance. I have seen it brighten the darkest days of the war aided by the light of his words. His faith and good cheer were immovable. I felt the latter when he said:

"See the look of alarm in his face. Now for a pretty drama!"

"Mrs. Hare gave me her hand and I kissed it and said that I had expected Margaret and hoped that she was not ill. There was a thistledown touch on my cheek from behind and turning I saw the laughing face I sought looking up at me. I tell you, my mother, there never was such a pair of eyes. Their long, dark lashes and the glow between them I remember chiefly. The latter was the friendly light of her spirit. To me it was like a candle in the window to guide my feet. 'Come,' it seemed to say. 'Here is a welcome for you.' I saw the pink in her cheeks, the crimson in her lips, the white of her neck, the glow of her abundant hair, the shapelessness of brow and nose and chin in that first glance. I saw the beating of her heart even. I remember there was a tiny mole on her temple under the edge of that beautiful, golden crown of hers. It did not escape my eye. I tell you she was fair as the first violets in Meadowvale on a dewy morning. Of course, she was at her best. It was the last moment in years of waiting in which her imagination had furnished me with endowments too romantic. I have seen great moments, as you know, but this is the one I could least afford to give up. I had long been wondering what I should do when it came. Now it was come and there was no taking thought of what we should do. That would seem to have been settled out of court. I kissed her lips and she kissed mine and for a few moments I think we could have stood in a half bushel measure. Then the Doctor laughed and gave her ladyship a smack on the cheek.

"I don't know about you, my lady, but it fills me with the glow of youth to see such going on," he remarked. "I'm only twenty-one and nobody knows it—nobody suspects it even."

These wrinkles and gray hair are only a mask that covers the heart of a boy."

"I confess that such a scene does push me back into my girlhood," said Lady Hare. "Alas! I feel the old thrill."

"Suddenly Solomon arrived. Of course where Solomon is, one would expect solecisms. They were not wanting. I had not tried to prepare him for the ordeal. Solomon is bound to be himself wherever he is, and why not? There is no better man living."

"You're as purty as a golden robin," he said to Margaret, shaking her hand in his big one.

"He was not so much put out as I thought he would be. I never saw a gentler man with women. As hard as iron in a fight, there has always been a curious vein of chivalry in the old scout. He stood and joked with the girl, in his odd fashion, and set us all laughing. Margaret and her mother enjoyed his talk and spoke of it, often, after that."

"I dressed and went to dine with the Hares that evening. They lived in a large house on a fashionable 'road' as certain of the streets were called. It was a typical upper class, English home. There were many fine old things in it but no bright colors, nothing to dazzle or astonish you like the wooden Indian in war paint and feathers and the stuffed bear and high colored rugs in the parlor of Mr. Gosport in Philadelphia. Every piece of furniture was like the quiet, still-footed servants who came and went making the smallest possible demand upon your attention."

"I was shown into the library where Sir Benjamin sat alone—reading a newspaper. He greeted me politely."

"The news is disquieting," he said presently. "What have you to tell us of the situation in America?"

"It is critical," I answered. "It can be mended, however, if the government will act promptly."

"What should it do?"

"Make concessions, sir, stop shipping tea for a time. Don't try to force an export with a duty on it. I think the government should not shake the mailed fist at us."

"But think of the violence and the destruction of property!"

"All that will abate and disappear if the cause is removed. We, who keep our affection for England, have done our best to hold the passions of the people in check, but we get no help from this side of the ocean."

"Sir Benjamin sat thoughtfully feeling his silvered mustache. He had grown stouter and fuller-faced since we had parted in Albany when he had

"I take this opportunity of assuring your lordship that for all the property you seize or destroy in America, you will pay to the last farthing," said Franklin.

This treatment was like that he had received from other members of the government since the unfortunate publication of the Hutchinsons, Rogers and Oliver letters. They seemed to entertain the notion that he had forfeited the respect due a gentleman.

A few days after Franklin had given air to his suspicion that the government party would try to tow him into port three stout British ships had broken their cables on him. An invitation not likely to be received by one who had really forfeited the respect of gentlemen was in his hands. The shrewd philosopher did not think twice about it. He knew that here was the first step in a change of tactics. He could not properly decline to accept it and so he went to dine and spend the night with a most distinguished company at the country seat of Lord Howe.

Some of the best people were there—Lord and Lady Cathcart, Lord and Lady Hyde, Lord and Lady Dartmouth, Sir William Erskine, Sir Henry Clinton, Sir James Baird, Sir Benjamin Hare and their ladies were also present. Doctor Franklin said that the punch was calculated to promote cheerfulness and high sentiment. As was the custom at like functions, the ladies sat together at one end of the table, Franklin being seated at the right of Lady Howe, who was most gracious and entertaining. The first toast was to the venerable philosopher.

The dinner over, Lady Howe conducted Doctor Franklin to the library, where she asked him to sit down. There were no other persons in the room. She sat near him and began to speak of the misfortunes of the colony of Massachusetts Bay.

Lord Howe joined them in a moment. He was most polite.

"I am sensible of the fact that you have been mistreated by the ministry," he said. "I have not approved of their conduct. I am unconnected with those men save through personal friendships. My zeal for the public welfare is my only excuse for asking you to open your mind. The plan is now to send a commission to the colonies, as you have urged."

"Your lordship, I am not looking for rewards, but only for justice."

her away from me and all our family with dissension."

"May we not respect each other and disagree in politics?" I asked.

"In politics, yes, but not in war. I begin to see danger of war and that is full of the bitterness of death. If Doctor Franklin will do what he can to re-establish loyalty and order in the colonies my fear will be removed and I shall welcome you to my family."

"I began to show a glint of intelligence and said: 'If the ministers will co-operate it will not be difficult.'"

"The ministers will do anything it is in their power to do."

"Then the timely entrance of Margaret and her mother."

"I suppose that I shall shock my father but I cannot help it," said the girl as she kissed me.

"You may be sure that I had my part in that game. She stood beside me, her arm around my waist and mine around her shoulders."

"Father, can you blame me for loving this big, splendid hero who saved us from the Indians and the bandits? It is unlike you to be such a hardened wretch. But for him you would have neither wife nor daughter."

"She put it on thick but I held my peace as I have done many a time in the presence of a woman's cunning. Anyhow, she is apt to believe herself and in a matter of the heart can find her way through difficulties which would appall a man."

"Keep yourself in bounds, my daughter," her father answered. "I know his merits and should like to see you married and hope to, but I must ask you to be patient until you can go to a loyal colony with your husband."

"It was a pleasant dinner through which they kept me telling of my adventures in the bush. Save the immediate family only Mrs. Biggars, a sister of Lady Hare, and a young nephew of Sir Benjamin were at the table."

CHAPTER VII

The Dawn.

Franklin, whom Jack saw the next day, liked not the attitude of the baronet.

"He is one of the king's men on the big chess board," said the old philosopher. "All that he said to you has the sound of strategy. I have reason to believe that they are trying to tow us into port and Margaret is only one of many ropes. Hare's attitude is not that of an honest man."

Only three days before the philosopher had had a talk with North at the urgent request of Howe, who, to his credit, was eager for reconciliation. The king's friend and minister was contemptuous.

"I am quite indifferent to war," he had cynically declared at last. "The confiscations it would produce will provide for many of our friends."

It was an astonishing bit of frankness.

"I take this opportunity of assuring your lordship that for all the property you seize or destroy in America, you will pay to the last farthing," said Franklin.

This treatment was like that he had received from other members of the government since the unfortunate publication of the Hutchinsons, Rogers and Oliver letters. They seemed to entertain the notion that he had forfeited the respect due a gentleman.

A few days after Franklin had given air to his suspicion that the government party would try to tow him into port three stout British ships had broken their cables on him. An invitation not likely to be received by one who had really forfeited the respect of gentlemen was in his hands. The shrewd philosopher did not think twice about it. He knew that here was the first step in a change of tactics. He could not properly decline to accept it and so he went to dine and spend the night with a most distinguished company at the country seat of Lord Howe.

Some of the best people were there—Lord and Lady Cathcart, Lord and Lady Hyde, Lord and Lady Dartmouth, Sir William Erskine, Sir Henry Clinton, Sir James Baird, Sir Benjamin Hare and their ladies were also present. Doctor Franklin said that the punch was calculated to promote cheerfulness and high sentiment. As was the custom at like functions, the ladies sat together at one end of the table, Franklin being seated at the right of Lady Howe, who was most gracious and entertaining. The first toast was to the venerable philosopher.

The dinner over, Lady Howe conducted Doctor Franklin to the library, where she asked him to sit down. There were no other persons in the room. She sat near him and began to speak of the misfortunes of the colony of Massachusetts Bay.

Lord Howe joined them in a moment. He was most polite.

"I am sensible of the fact that you have been mistreated by the ministry," he said. "I have not approved of their conduct. I am unconnected with those men save through personal friendships. My zeal for the public welfare is my only excuse for asking you to open your mind. The plan is now to send a commission to the colonies, as you have urged."

"Your lordship, I am not looking for rewards, but only for justice."

Lesson for April 20

ELISHA: TEACHER AND STATES-MAN

LESSON TEXT—II Kings 6:15-23. GOLDEN TEXT—"Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with Good."—Rom. 12:21.

PRIMARY TOPIC—God Caring for His People.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Elisha's Goodness to His Enemies.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How to Turn Enemies Into Friends.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—What Elisha Meant to His Nation.

1. Elisha, Elijah's Successor (I Kings 19:15-21; II Kings 2:2-15.)

1. His Anointing (I Kings 19:15-21). In obedience to the Lord's command, Elisha went forth from his hiding place in Horeb to anoint Elisha as prophet. While Elisha was plowing with oxen Elijah passed by and cast his mantle upon him.

2. His Training (II Kings 2:2-8). Elisha came into the life of Elijah in the field, where he called him forth from the plow, and there was thenceforth real friendship between them, such that Elisha clung to his master to the very last, in spite of three urgent requests for him to remain behind.

3. Elisha's Double Portion (II Kings 2:12-15).

(1) Elisha's cry (v. 12). "The chariot of Israel, and the horsemen thereof." This implies that Elisha was the true national defense.

(2) Elisha takes his place (v. 13). The taking of Elijah's mantle indicates his assumption of his place as a prophet.

(3) Elisha's spirit upon Elisha (vv. 14, 15). This is proven by the use of his power to divide the Jordan. Also it is proven by the testimony of the sons of the prophets.

II. Elisha's Ministry (II Kings 3:10).

1. The Trenches Filled With Water (Chap. 3:16-20). Jehoram, in alliance with the king of Judah, went against the Moabites. His army was in great straits for lack of water. When they appealed to Elisha, he bade them show their faith by digging trenches in desert soil. The Lord sent water to fill the trenches.

2. Increase of the Widow's Oil (Chap. 4:1-7). This woman's husband had died, leaving a debt, and the creditor was about to make bondmen of her two sons. Elisha caused the scant supply of the widow's oil to be so increased that she sold enough to pay the debt.

3. The Shunamite's Son Restored (Chap. 4:8-37). Because of hospitality shown Elisha, he sought to help his hostess by promising that the Lord would give her a child. The joy brought by the fulfillment of the prophet's announcement was short-lived, for while yet but a lad he was taken away by death. In her sorrow she went to Elisha and he restored the child's life.

4. Heals Deadly Pottage (Chap. 4:38-41). In time of famine they made a vegetable soup from whatever growing plants they could find. By mistake a poisonous plant had been gathered. By putting meal into the pot, the soup was made healthful.

5. Fed One Hundred Men (Chap. 4:42-44). To the astonishment of his attendant, he fed one hundred men with twenty barley cakes and a sack of uncooked grain.

6. He Healed Naaman, the Leper (Chap. 5:1-10). At the instance of a captive Jewish maid, Naaman, the great Syrian general, was brought into touch with Elisha. Without even coming to see Naaman Elisha, through his servant, bade him dip seven times in the Jordan. He obeyed and was instantly healed.

7. Recovers the Lost Axe (Chap. 6:1-7). While the sons of the prophets were cutting timber to enlarge their quarters, the head of a borrowed axe flew from the handle and was lost in the muddy waters. When shown the place Elisha cast a stick into the water and the axe floated to the surface.

III. Elisha's Heavenly Defenders (II Kings 6:8-23).

This shows the secret of Elisha's power.

1. The Syrian King Sorely Troubled (vv. 8-12). The king directing war fare against Israel. He located camps so as to intercept Israel's army. Through Elisha God made known the enemy's movements (v. 9).

2. The Syrian King Tries to Trap Elisha, but, though surrounded by the Syrian army, a mightier host of heavenly defenders were round about him.

3. The Syrian Army Trapped. Elisha led the Syrian army into Samaria. He ordered that they should be fed and sent back to their land.

He Came to Save Sinners

When a prominent man dies, we are anxious to get his last words and acts. The last act of the Son of God was to save a sinner. That was a part of the glory of His death. He commenced His ministry by saving sinners, and ended it by saving this poor thief.—D. L. Moody.

Inexcusable

Most people will excuse anything quicker than an apology.—Christina Herald.

AFTER AN OPERATION

Mrs. Wilke Couldn't Get Back Her Strength Until She Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Rochester, Minnesota.—"I had a very serious operation and it seemed as if I could not get my health back after it. I suffered with pain almost constantly. My sister came to help take care of me, and she was taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nervousness and a run-down condition. She had me try some of it, and in a very few days' time I began to feel better. In two weeks I hardly knew myself and after taking a couple of bottles more I was up and helping around, and now I am strong and healthy again and am still taking it. It is a pleasure to me to write this to you, and I hope that many other women who are suffering like I was will find out about your medicine. I will give any information I possibly can."—Mrs. JAMES WILKE, 933 E. Center Street, Rochester, Minn.

Remember, the Vegetable Compound has a record of fifty years of service and thousands of women praise its merit, as does Mrs. Wilke.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Curious Boulder

A tremendous boulder, weighing some 17 tons and perched upon a flat rock, apparently so nicely balanced that a glance at it almost convinces a person that but little force is needed to throw it over, is to be seen in the Berkshire hills of Massachusetts, not far from Pittsfield. It is called the "Balance Rock," but, despite its name and appearance, is firmly fixed and makes no movement whatever.

Tricked

Getting the idea from seeing a vaudeville performer swallow swords, Jacob Zienke, of Chicago, bought ten butcher knives and essayed to swallow them one by one. One was enough. It stuck. "I'll bet there's a trick to it," Zienke wrote on a pad for one of the hospital nurses.

Why Mokena Should Retain High School

The basis of progress is in judicious advertising. Not alone is this true in connection with business enterprises, but it is the factor of advancement in the business of promoting the interests in every community or municipality.

Every public institution according to its degree of completeness becomes to that degree an advertisement for the community in general.

The public school, and its advantages offered, is beyond a doubt, the outstanding feature of the district surrounding. It is not only a creature of necessity, but an answer to the demand of local progressive resident tax payers, as well as to the requirements of prospective investors in the locality who would come to make their homes among us.

Always there is an agitation to subtract rather than to add something to that which we already have.
This is the case in the Village of Mokena, where an attempt is being made, in a quiet way, to create a sentiment against our local school
and favoring the abolishment of our
two year high school department.

We are sure that the sober minded element among our inhabitants,
will not only resent this attempted interference with our local school system, but that they will lend their influence and work for the retention of what we have and if possible to secure for our community the establishment of the full four year high school course.

Abandoning our high school will not result in additional advantage
from any standpoint, surely not in economy to the tax payers for it has been settled beyond argument that the necessary expense, loss of time,
trouble attending the care, transportation and tuition of students in neighboring schools is greater than the expense of maintaining the department locally.

Taking away our high school and its association would reduce our social standing, both in and out of the institution, detract from the efficiency of the remaining grades, give to our otherwise advancing community, the semblance of retrogression,
and would cause many of our citizen property owners and tax payers who have fought for better things, to lose heart in the efforts for future
progress.

Let us put forth a united effort to hold our high school—Let us boost for a full course which would be the only possible economic move that could be made in our local school, if any change at all were to be made.

"Give Mokena the biggest and best local school obtainable" should be our slogan.

Educate and rear our children in our own homes rather than in the homes of our neighbors should be
and must be our most important duty.

Further comment will be made on this important subject in next week's News-Bulletin.

above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders, and security holders if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said
two paragraphs contain statements
embracing affiant's full knowledge
and belief as to the circumstances
and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock
and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner;
and that affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

Wm. Semmler, Owner.

Sworn to and subscribed before me this 16th day of April, 1924.

John Liess, Notary Public.

everybody.

The girls having sewing as an achievement project, can feel justly proud of the fact, that their work
has been so well done that a picture of a display of their fancy work and also of the members of the club was taken. This picture was shown on the screen at the Teachers Institute at the Art Institute in Chicago. Gladys DuVal an eighth grader, spoke before the assembly on the sewing project.

Mrs. J. Keleher, accompanied by her son George, went to Chicago on deed according to the old saying,

and H. F. Bruggeman certainly proved himself one when he helped one of our residents to get back his coat, taken by a colored (gentleman?) out of the rack from an R.
I. train one evening last week and getting in an auto Mr. Bruggeman drove hastily back to Oak Forest station and nabbing the thief was quicker done than said. The thief was turned lose after he returned the coat. It is said he was so badly scared that he almost turned white.
